Internship in Strategic Consultancy for Renewable Energy & Hydrogen | Paris Office

Job description

Internship in Hinicio is looking for a final year master's student in engineering or business or similar with a strong interest in sustainable energy and hydrogen sector.

The intern will be part of the consultant team based in Paris working on one or more projects, typically on the following tasks:

1. Quantitative and qualitative market research.
2. Identification of funding opportunities for large-scale projects and supporting applications to EU and National subsidies.
3. Techno-economic modeling of (renewable) energy systems.
4. Benchmarking of competing for technical solutions.
5. Energy policy and regulatory analysis.
6. Writing client presentations and reports.

What we offer

- A 6-month internship in Paris with the purpose to offer a long-term contract afterward if satisfactory. In the long term, the person could be based in one of our international offices in Paris, Brussels, Bogota, or another.
- An exciting and supportive working environment, where "intrapreneurship" opens doors to opportunities.
- The opportunity to produce a direct impact on projects that foster the transformation of the energy system globally.
- A worldwide team of recognized industry experts to train with and guide you in your professional development.
